Revolutionary Leader in Hankow Is Proclamation Declaring He Comes To Save Chinese People and Asks That Men Join Banks of Rebels—Frightful Scenes Are Reported Near Shanghai.

Shanghai, Oct. 19.—The Chinese rebellion is gaining ground rapidly, according to today's advices from up and down the Yang Tze Kiang valley all between here and Hankow.

Telegraphic communication with Hankow collapsed shortly after midnight, and it is variously reported that the rebels and loyalists are now fighting desperately there and that the former have attained a complete victory.

Yesterday's general engagement between the rebel forces and the Hankow garrison certainly did not end in a government represented, and the better of the battle until their communication ran out, and then fell back upon Wu Chang, where they placably secured a fresh supply and resumed the attack.

It is said that every man, woman and child of the Manchurian race was butchered when the rebels captured Wu Chang, and it is believed that similar slaughters occurred in every city attacked by the revolutionists.
In yesterday's fight at Hankow 300 rebels were killed and the loyalists losses are said to have been even heavier.

A Proclamation.
A proclamation credited to the revolutionary leader in Hankow reads:

I come to save the Chinese people. Hitherto you have been bitterly oppressed. Let whoever is announced by patriotism quickly join our rank. With us he will obtain unending glory by delivering our country from the Manchurian barbarian who has hitherto eaten our flesh.
From now on we shall sleep in his skin.

European refugees from Hankow, of whom six steamship loads arrived here today, described frightful scenes along the river above Shanghai.

The Chinese, they say, are hunting down their Manchurian enemies like wild animals and killing them by the dozens. They believe the rebellion has reached such proportions that it can never be quelled.

Shanghai itself is a hotbed of revolution and reports of plots and counter-plots are numberless. At Peking and Canton, the precautions the authorities are taking suggest strongly that they look for early outbreaks in both cities. Mutinies are breaking out among the 21,000 troops now on their way to relieve the loyalist garrison of Hankow, and by the time it reaches there the rumors are that it will go over to the rebels bodily.

For the first time in history, Chinese women are volunteering as Red Cross nurses.

Indianapolis, Oct. 19.—The ideal community has been found. Governor Marshall, of Indiana, back discoverer of Ferdinand township.

Chair by Governor.

Columbus, O., Oct. 19.—For the fourth time in six months, Steve Scott, colored, sentenced to die today was yanked from the electric chair today through a reprieve from Governor Harmon.
Scott was sentenced to the electric chair at Raleigh, North Carolina, where the governor spoke yesterday at the state fair.
Scott has been in the annex awaiting execution for the murder of an Italian railway laborer in 1910. In Miami county, since April 26, 1910.

EASTERN MEN TO SEEK BETTER WAGEDecision Is Made at Convention Held in Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Oct. 19.—Increased wages for 75,000 railroad employes in the East probably will be asked as a result of the convention of the Eastern Association of Railroad Conductors and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, meeting here today.
It is asserted that eastern train-men do not obtain as good wages as the employes in western territory, and L. E. Sheppard, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, said today that while it was unlikely that demands would be formulated and presented to the eastern railways during the present session, a special convention probably would be called soon for that purpose. Sheppard says that a difference of from twelve to fifteen per cent. exists in the railroad wage schedules of the east and west.

Recover.

Oxford, O., Oct. 19.—Lucille Osborn, sixteen, high school girl, who late yesterday shot herself because her mother had objected to her accepting the attentions of young men, will recover, according to her physician. The young woman is suffering from a bullet wound in the

The girl told her mother today that she had obtained the revolver from a young man with whom she had been keeping company.

Men and a Millionaire Coffee Exporter of Rio Janeiro—Trust Is Said To Have Cleared $50,000,000 in Five Years—No Relief in Sight, Say Posted Men.

New York, Oct. 19.—Today's coffee market opened with number seven Rio at sixteen cents, the highest price since 1895, the year of the "coffee famine" in Brazil. The new record was set in the face of a "tight" coffee supply 30,000,000 pounds greater than it was last year when spot coffee was eight cents a pound in the New York market.
Prospects of short coffee crop in 1912 have somewhat influenced prices upward, but the extremely high levels are due to the presence in the market of the trust, formed between the Brazilian government and American, English, French, German and Dutch financiers to corner the coffee supply until 1919 and dictate coffee prices to the world for that period.

Arbuckle has announced an advance in the wholesale price to twenty-three and one-half cents, effective October 23, and other standard package brand manufacturers are following suit. Fifteen months ago standard package brands retailed at seventeen and eighteen cents a pound.

To Fight Trusts.

Thirty of the principal coffee roasters and jobbers of New York today reached an informal agreement to organize to fight the trust.
Although there are millions of pounds of coffee in existence, so much of it by agreement is locked up in the trust warehouses in New York, Havana, London, Trieste, and Hamburg, that the available supply is actually less than it has been for twenty years.

The coffee pool was the product of the brain of Herman Sielchen, for years the chief figure in the Manhattan coffee market and that of Theodore Wille, a millionaire coffee exporter, of Rio Janeiro. These men explained to the Brazilian government that a permanent coffee pool would maintain high prices for the grower and would guarantee to Brazil a constant revenue from the coffee export tax, Brazil's chief source of revenue.

In return, Brazil passed limitation laws and furnished the pool funds by a $75,000,000 bond issue.
A valorization committee of seven members was appointed to determine each year how much coffee to release for consumption. Sielchen was the American member.

The pool deals exclusively in Brazilian coffee. The more expensive Java and Mocha coffees are not affected and have not increased in price. Since its formation four years ago the pool has cleared, according to present values, something like $50,000,000.

MAN OUTS THROATDomestic Trouble Enter Into Tragedy.

Buried with Sorrow Because Wife Seeks Divorce and Conscious of

ly Unnerving Him, South Zaneville Postmaster Dies Rather Than Face Inspector.

Zanesville, O., Oct. 19.—Realizing that the visit of the postoffice inspector meant certain discovery of his speculations, Benjamin Dugan, for twelve years postmaster at South Zanesville, and a leading Republican politician, ended his life. His body was found with the throat cut in an unoccupied building back of the postoffice today.

Dugan had recently been sued for divorce, and, facing the heavy strain of combined domestic troubles and consciousness of official wrongdoing, was completely unnerved yesterday evening, when he returned to the postoffice and found Postoffice Inspector J. F. Oldfield going over his books.

"Hello, I want to see you," said Oldfield as Dugan looked in the door.

"I'll be back in a few minutes," cried Dugan hastily disappearing.

This was 7:30 p. m. He never came back and his body was discovered this morning.

Oldfield declared he had found a shortage of $1,200 in Dugan's accounts, which he reported to the authorities in Washington. He will remain in Zanesville until a settlement can be made with Dugan's bondsmen.

PERFECT BATHING
SUIT GIRL SUEDPretty Pittsburgh Girl Can't Furnish Bond and Is Jailed.

Pittsburgh, Oct. 19.—Miss Lillian Robertson, known as the "Perfect Bathing Suit Girl," whose figure won her local fame, languishes behind the gray walls of the Allegheny county jail. She was committed to jail yesterday in default of $300, having been sued for $10,000 damages by Mrs. Marshall F. Bradley, wife of the general superintendent of police of the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Bradley charges Miss Robertson with having alienated her husband's affections and enticing him away from his home and family.
Miss Robertson, who resides on north Highland avenue, Pittsburgh's most exclusive residence section, met Mrs. Bradley in a department store some time ago and is alleged to have flattered her about her husband, declaring he was her "affinity."

The allegations made by Mrs.
Bradley tell of being forcibly ejected from her home, the Robertson woman and her sister, Tisha, being installed. The family furniture, it is alleged, was turned over to the Robertson sisters. Olive Bradley, an only child, aged thirteen, is held in Chicago, and the wife says she was turned adrift in the world, with no financial assistance from Bradley.

BANK TELLER IS GIVEN SIX YEARSCincinnati Man Is Sent to Kansas Prison by Court.

Cincinnati, Oct. 19.—Wallace Davis, self-confessed defaulting paying teller of the Fifth-Third National bank, was sentenced to six years in the Leavenworth, Kansas, penitentiary, today, by United States District Judge Sater.

Davis' wife was present in court and collapsed in her husband's arms when the sentence was pronounced.
Davis heard his penalty in silence.
He had previously pleaded guilty and had also made a written confession admitting that he had taken $1,500 of the bank's funds.

According to his own statement, his downfall was chiefly due to handbooks. Davis had been with the bank for a number of years in various capacities and at the time of his defection was getting $1,600 a year.

ANOTHER TIDAL

Says Report.

Mexico City, Oct. 19.—A report reached here this afternoon that another tidal wave, similar to the one which devastated Guaymas, has wiped out San Blas and Sahuatengo, having 5,000 and 2,000 inhabitants, respectively. All communication with Tehuacan, the state in which these towns are situated, has ceased, but many are reported dead and the property loss is said to be enormous.

CHURCH WOMEN
THROW "BOMBS"Shoot Craps To Settle Election Question in Smoky City.

Pittsburgh, Oct. 19.—The spectacle of a score of prominent church and society women "shooting craps" in their desperate effort to defeat their male opponents for the office of school visitor was witnessed in the Allegheny county courthouse Wednesday.

The new Pennsylvania school code authorizes women to act as school visitors. There were 100 of them in the primaries, and the most of them defeated the men who were running against them.

But yesterday it was discovered by the county commissioners that at least twenty of the women had the same number of votes as their male opponents. So the prothonotary summoned them to the courthouse. He explained with the dignity of his office that gambling devices would be resorted to in order to decide the tie.

"What?" shouted one woman.
"You mean that we are to gamble?
Well, not much!" shouted the other nineteen in chorus.

"Well, you then forfeit your nominations," declared the prothonotary.
And when the women saw that he meant exactly what he said they held a secret consultation, then announced that they would select the "bombs."

"We hear they are the most reliable of all," said the spokesman.
The dice were brought forth and the women shot "craps," with the result that seventeen of the men were defeated.

WARDEN JONES
WON'T LOSE JOBIs To Be Retained as Head of State Prison.

Columbus, O., Oct. 19.—Warden
T. H. B. Jones, of the Ohio penitentiary, during whose regime of thirty months' duration eighteen prisoners have escaped from the penitentiary, will be retained as the head of the prison, according to a statement today of Allen W. Thurman, president of the state board of administration.

"We have not considered the question of removing Warden Jones," said Thurman. "A careful perusal of the charges preferred against him has revealed nothing which, in our minds, warrants his removal."

Thurman has sent a reply to the appeal for reinstatement of Captain Solomon Shipley, discharged head of the night watch, in which he declines to overrule Jones' action.

Probe To Resume.

Columbus, O., Oct. 19.—Attorney General Hogan today announced that the penitentiary probe would be resumed Monday morning, with Warden T. H. B. Jones on the stand.
Jones will be asked concerning alleged cruel treatment of prisoners by guards, as related by Captain Solomon Shipley, deposed captain of the night watch. He will also be given an opportunity to volunteer whatever information he can in his defense.

ter Attends Dayton Meeting.

Dayton, Oct. 19.—Every living past grand master in Ohio, in addition to the Grand lodge officers, is in attendance at the session of the Grand lodge of Masons, which began its sessions in this city yesterday.
This is an unusual circumstance in the history of the Grand lodge sessions. The opening session was devoted to addresses in which the 600 visiting Masons and members of the Grand lodge were welcomed. The business session followed. The election will take place today.

Reed Commandery, Knights Templars, was escort to the Grand lodge when it marched from the Algonquin hotel to the Masonic temple yesterday for the opening exercises. The annual report of Grand Secretary Bronwell showed that there are 82-833 Masons in Ohio, an increase of 3,322 for the year. Hamilton county leads, with Cuyahoga second.

Yesterday the Grand lodge officers, delegates and women went to Springfield to visit the Masonic home. Last night was devoted to social affairs and degree work by Dayton lodge.

and Loses His Suit.

New York, Oct. 19.—"Ruzzielamb" Russell G. Griswold will get no heart balm from Miss Helen Woodruff Smith, of Stamford, Connecticut, the jury today returning a verdict for the defendant. Griswold demanded $50,000 for alleged breach of promise to marry.

Neither the wealthy "Brunhilde" nor the youthful "Siegfried" were in court when the verdict was read.

Failure to give "Ruzzielamb" at least some trifling comfort for the pieces of his broken heart, came as a distinct surprise. The jury had not reached an agreement when the court adjourned last night, and had sent for the passionate love letters sent by Miss Smith to her boyish lover. All this was taken by court attaches to mean that the twelve men were merely debating as to the sum they would award "Ruzzielamb."

The trial, which lasted three days, was filled with interesting moments.
Griswold took the stand and told of his love for the wealthy divorcee and of their alleged pledged truth, which he said Miss Smith broke and then told him it had been but a "pastime" for her.

DEWEY VISITS A
HUMBLE FRIENDAdmiral Lays Aside Shoulder Straps
To Talk Old Times.

Cleveland, Oct. 19.—That Admiral George Dewey, hero of Manila bay, laid aside his shoulder straps and was the guest for a night of an aged pensioned seaman who had once saved his life, became known here today. In a cramped little parlor of a three-room cottage, Admiral Dewey far into the night, fighting over the battles with his humble friend, Martin Warren, a gun pointer on the boat, "Mississippi," during the civil war.

It was last Friday night that Dewey stopped over in Cleveland on his way to Chicago where he supervised the revision of the sailors' pension list.

The secret of the truancy of the American admiral to renew an old acquaintance probably would not have come to light had it not been for the curiosity of Watrous' neighbors who were insistent in their demands as to the identity of the mysterious visitor. Dewey left the cottage early in the morning. Sometimes, however, had a good glimpse of him and Watrous told his story.

In 1862 Dewey was a lieutenant on the Mississippi. During an engagement he was about to be cut down by a southern sailor with a cutlass. Watrous was directly behind Dewey and shot down the confederate. Watrous said he had not seen the Admiral since the close of the war although he had received letters from him occasionally.

"But he sat in this little room and talked and smoked his pipe just as you and I might—and he an admiral and me a pensioned enlisted man," concluded the old seaman.

THE BEER QUESTION
FERMENTS IN OHIOSo Says Miss Cousins, Who Is Coming To Aid Dry.

Washington, Oct. 19.—Lying upon a cot in a dingy room of a dingy downtown hotel, Miss Phoebe Cousins, sixty-seven years old, today announced her intention of entering the prohibition campaign in Ohio.

"The beer question is fermenting in Ohio," said Miss Cousins, "and when I finish my lecture all the counties will go dry."

"I've been thrown out on the world, humiliated and mortified," she continued, "by the United States Brewers' association. They think I'm done for, but I'll show them yet. My annuity has been cut off and they are trying to railroad me to an old ladies' home. They are coming before congress next session for favors and then I'll get them. No old ladies' home for me yet."

Latest Burglar Plans.

Chicago, Oct. 19.—Tearful burglars, garbed in black, some carrying prayer books, are the very latest kind to cause fright in South Chicago, where they "work" as insane agents.

LIEUTENANT FRANK
LAHM IS WEDDEDArmy Aviator Takes Bride at Mansfield, Wednesday.

Mansfield, Oct. 19.—Lieutenant Frank P. Lahm, well-known United States army navigator and balloonist, and Miss Gertrude E. Jenner, daughter of the late Judge John W.
Jenner, were married last night at the home of the bride's mother in the presence of a large concourse of friends and relatives. Mansfield is Mr. Lahm's home city.

A number of army officers were guests, as was Frank S. Lahm, of Paris, France, father of the bridegroom, who also is widely known in aeronautics.

Lieutenant Lahm will leave soon to rejoin his regiment in the Philippines. He won the first international James Gordon Bennett cup balloon race held in France.

Indianapolis, Oct. 19.—With 2,500 bushels of Shank potatoes thus far sold at cost to residents of Indianapolis in an effort to force unabated. Mayor Shank announced

WICKERSHAM IS NOW A FAVORITESlated To Succeed the Late
Justice Harlan.TAFT PROCEEDS VERY CAUTIOUSLYChief Executive Declines To Discuss Matter.

The President Refuses To Make Any Fixed Decision Regarding Harlan's Successor Until He Reaches Washington—Fisher, Nagel, New York Lawyer and Cincinnati Man
Also Mentioned for Bench.

Butte, Mont., Oct. 19.—George W. Wickersham, attorney general of the United States, today loomed up as the most promising candidate for justice of the supreme court of the United States to succeed the late Justice Harlan.

Out of a long list of possibilities which President Taft took up for consideration today, Wickersham seemed to be the favorite.

While the chief executive declined to discuss the matter of the appointment for publication, it was learned that the possibility of a progressive jurist succeeding the late "great discussor" is very remote. In the list so far considered, Secretary of the Interior, Walter Fisher, whose chances are not bright, is the only one who could be called a progressive.

While the president realizes that the appointment of Wickersham would undoubtedly call forth a good deal of criticism, because of the attorney general's former Wall street connections, he believed his trust prosecution record would overbalance the criticism to a certain degree, and he has a very high opinion of the attorney general's legal ability. Besides, it is said that many of the president's advisers are strongly in favor of getting Wickersham out of the cabinet.

Proceeds Carefully.

President Taft, however, has refused to make any fixed decisions regarding his successor until he reaches Washington, November 18.

In addition to Fisher and Wickersham, Secretary of War Shimon and Secretary of Commerce and Labor Nagel are also said to be under consideration. Solicitor General Lebman, Thomas Marshall, a New York lawyer, and Circuit Court Justice John Warrington, of Cincinnati, who was recently appointed by President Taft, are also on the list of eligibles.

Scores of suggestions have been made to the president, but he has steadfastly refused to commit himself, and when he reaches Washington he will take the matter up with his advisers. He believes this appointment will have a strong political effect, as it will place him on record as having named five justices, a majority of the court. Therefore, he is determined to weigh the merits of the various candidates carefully and to proceed cautiously.

Puzzling Things Are Seen in His Attitude and Woman's Death.

Boston, Oct. 19.—Efforts of the police to find evidence which would justify them in arresting a man suspected of having sent to or given cyanide of potassium to Miss Avis Linnell, beautiful New England conservatory student, who died at the Young Women's Christian association, had not been successful up to late last night, but Chief of Police Dugan is confident there will be important developments within a few hours.

In the meantime a pastor of a church at Cambridge, whom Miss Linnell believed she was to marry, until she read a few minutes before she died of his engagement to a wealthy and prominent young woman in Brookline's social set, is said to be at the home of the latter.
He has refused to see reporters or members of his church. It is said that he is suffering from a nervous collapse.

Chief of Police Dugan and two detectives passed several hours at the Young Women's Christian association questioning young women there about the engagement which is reported to have existed between the preacher and Miss Linnell. What he learned he would not divulge.

Arrest to Follow.
"If I should obtain certain evidence I would not wait for an inquest, but would make an arrest at once," declared the chief of police.
"I am absolutely satisfied that the cyanide of potassium was either sent to the girl or given her by a person with whose movements we are keeping in touch."

"There is no evidence to show that she was in other than a happy frame of mind the day she took the poison."

"She did not know, I am positive the nature of the drug she took,
but was simply carrying out instructions of the person who gave or sent her the poison."

"The person I have under suspicion cannot get away. I have attended to that. There will be an arrest within twenty-four hours."

William J. McLean, brother-in-law of Miss Linnell, who lives in Brockton, said that when the preacher in question was told by telephone of the girl's fatal illness he denied having known her.

loved nature and spent much time out of doors. Of late years he played golf enthusiastically. He stood six feet, two inches in his stocking feet and in his prime weighed 300 pounds. He stood erect and was a figure of distinction in any crowd.

Last spring, Harlan went to Murray Bay, Canada, for his vacation. He found that his usual strength was not in evidence. He gradually seemed to weaken, but there was no sign of disease. It was simply the breaking down of a splendid system—the wear and tear of the seventy-eight years of active life.

When he returned here two weeks ago he was in good health in every way, except for the increasing weakness. Any illness attacking him would have quickly made inroads and this is the explanation given by his physician for the severe effect of the attack of bronchitis, which began last Tuesday.

Harlan became unconscious last evening and throughout the night seemed to rest perfectly. When the end came his wife, two daughters and two sons, at the bedside, were not aware of it. It was simply a case of gradually approaching death, caused by the slowly decreasing action of the heart, which finally stopped so easily that there was no sign upon the peaceful face of the sleeper.

Those at his side, besides his wife, were two daughters, the Misses Harlan; his sons, James S. Harlan, member of the Interstate Commerce commission, and John Maynard Harlan, a lawyer, of Chicago. No arrangements for the funeral have been made.

A third son, the Rev. Richard Harlan, who is traveling in France, was notified by cable.

Serves Many Years.

Washington, Oct. 14.—Associate Justice John M. Harlan, senior member of the supreme court of the United States, seventy-eight years old, died at his home here at 8:15 a. m. today, following a brief illness of bronchitis which developed complications. He sat on the bench when the October term of court opened Monday, but Tuesday was confined to his home with a cold which gradually grew worse.

The aged jurist won extraordinary fame last spring when in virulent opinions he dissented from the remainder of the highest court in the Standard Oil and Tobacco trust decisions, asserting that his associates were amending the law by reading the word "reasonable" into the Sherman anti-trust law.

Harlan served thirty-four years on the bench, which, with one exception, is the longest term in the history of the country.

The death of Justice Harlan gives President Taft the duty of selecting his fifth appointee to the supreme bench, which will make a majority on the bench of men selected by Taft. In addition, he elevated Associate Justice White to the position of chief Justice, to which, before he reached Washington, President Hayes intended to assign him; served as a member of the Louisiana commission; was commissioned as associate justice of the United States supreme court November 29, 1877, and took his seat December 10, same year; received the degree of LL. D. from Bowdoin college and the University of Pennsylvania; was a member of the Berlin sea tribunal of arbitration which met in Paris in 1895, was vice moderator of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States of America in 1905.

For more than twenty years, he was a lecturer on constitutional law in George Washington university.

From Harlan's Opinion.

Washington, Oct. 14.—Following are extracts from Justice Harlan's famous dissenting opinion:

"The court has heard into the Sherman act words which are not to be found there and has thereby done that which it adjudged in 1896 and 1898 could not be done without violating the constitution."

"The courts have nothing to do with the wisdom or policy of an act of congress."

"To overreach the action of congress, merely by judicial construction, is a blow at the integrity of our governmental system."

"The court—has usurped the constitutional functions of the legislative branch of the government."

A PROGRESSIVE MAY GET HARLAN'S SEAT

Brandeis and Lehmann Are Spoken of for Place.

Washington, Oct. 18.—Political circles agreed today that President Taft will select a progressive as the successor to the late Associate Justice Harlan, of the supreme court, and that in order to meet the political situation he will choose the most progressive man that he and his advisers can agree upon.

One report was that Louis D. Brandeis, of Boston, might be chosen, as it was argued that his appointment would be the strongest possible blow that Taft could deliver at the proecessiveist at this time Taft's personal dislike of Brandeis developed following Brandeis' exposure of the alleged predated report, and the famous Lawlor draft of the letter exonerating Ballinger in the Alaskan case, however, it is believed by many, would prevent Brandeis' appointment. The strongest tip here today was that Solicitor General Frederick W. Lehmann would be appointed. He is a lifelong friend of Senator Cummins, an Iowa insurgent, and trans in the progressive camp.

"It has been the general opinion that Lehmann did not come here merely to be solicitor general," said one of his friends, today. "We believe that he was promised a place on the bench, just as Solicitor General Lloyd Bowers was."

Omaha, Oct. 16.—Seven persons were killed, six probably fatally injured and 20 otherwise hurt in a head-on collision on the Missouri Pacific near Fort Crook. The trains were the northbound St. Louis flyer and an extra freight, southbound. The wreck took place within half a mile of the military post at Fort Crook and within sight of the barracks.

The dead, Miss Frances L. Kanka, Washington, Kan.; F. W. Peirings, Nebraska City; O. W. Keeler, Alchison, Kan.; Mrs. Fred W. Rowltmann, Nebraska City; Wisterian Rowltmann, 8, daughter of Mrs. Rowltmann; A. W. Sprague, St. Joseph, Mo.; unidentified colored woman.

For more than twenty years, he was a lecturer on constitutional law in George Washington university.

MANY ARE KILLED BY EARTHQUAKE

Twenty Bodies Are Recovered from Ruins Near Mt. Etna.

Catania, Oct. 16.—An earthquake of brief duration occurred in Sicily. The strongest shocks were felt at Giarre, at the east base of Mt. Etna, Macchia, Guardia, Roudinella and Santa Venetia. Reports from the districts affected indicate that many persons were killed, probably by the collapse of buildings. Troops were dispatched to the work of rescue and succeeded in removing 20 bodies.

It was stated emphatically that this government is preserving the strictest neutrality regarding the Chinese revolution, and will continue such a policy indefinitely. The only activities permitted the consular representatives of the state department in the disturbed region are those directed toward assuring the safety of American residents.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—John R. Walsh, the Chicago banker released from Leavenworth penitentiary on a parole after serving twenty-one months of a five-year sentence for bank wrecking, will not enter active business here for several months, if at all. The effects of his long confinement were apparent in the feeble walk and emaciated face of the former banker, as he arrived home yesterday. He had to be assisted from the taxicab. Walsh's sons have conducted their father's affairs since his conviction and it was said today that the former wizard of finance would probably never again assume charge of his affairs.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—After spending Sunday here, the sixteen passengers of the first public "pay-as-you-enter" automobile train resumed their journey across the continent today. The party expects to complete the 4,200-mile trip at Los Angeles by November 25. Each passenger is required to pay $875 to cover expenses. The party is due at Omaha next Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. I. Millhouse and two children left, Monday night, for White Fish, Montana, where they expect to make their future home.

A LONG, HARD WINTER IS PREDICTED BY PROPHETS

What the Goosebone Says of Coming Weather.

GOOD SLEIGHING IS EXPECTED NEXT MONTH

Lots of Snow and Weather That Will Appear the Ears Said To Be on the Way—How the Planets Govern Rise and Fall of Temperature. The Prophecy.

It is going to be a long, hard winter with lots of snow. Two of the country's most famous weather prophets agree upon this forecast, and the goosebone of a third bears them out. Uncle Sam's official weather man never tells weather secrets so far ahead, but if you take the advice of "Uncle" Horace Johnson, the sage of Middle Haddam, Connecticut, or Weather Prophet De Voe, of Hackensack, New Jersey, you'll get your coal in early and have your fur coat handy on the rack.

September is the open season for weather prophets. They emerge from their lairs with their readings of the stars and the goosebone just at the time when summer days are waning. Prophet De Voe always forecasts them all. His prediction for this winter was made two years ago. He is busy just now on 1912, which is going some for weather prophets, and he had to look back in his records to tell you what this winter will be like.

While "Uncle" Horace and Prophet De Voe agree on the fact that as a winter it's going to be the real thing, they differ a little as to dates for the first snowfall. From his retreat in Connecticut, where he has been studying the stars for eighty-eight years, "Uncle" Horace the other day issued his annual proclamation in which he started the farmers by announcing that snow would fall on October 18. Out in Hackensack Weather Prophet De Voe, who is just a bit "Uncle" Horace's junior, made it known to a Sun reporter that "Uncle" Horace had made a little mistake in his dates.

"He's got it just a little too soon," said Prophet De Voe, after a kindly reference to "Uncle" Horace. "Snow will fall October 24, but it will be out West, not here. But it will be a long, hard winter. He's right about that."

According to Mr. De Voe, November 7 will see the first snow fall hereabout and not October 18, as Uncle Horace thinks. It will be a heavy fall and there will be a second fall November 22 and sleighing on Thanksgiving day. Such a thing as hasn't been seen hereabout in years. And as for December, you would fairly shiver to hear him talk about that month even in these warm days of fall. It will be awfully cold, he says, with heavy snow on the 9th and 10th, another ripping snowstorm on the 21st to pile it up for Christmas sleighing, and still another December 29, with the thermometer hugging the bottom of the tube.

"Uncle" Horace says that by November 12 the lakes and streams will have plenty of ice, which agrees pretty well, you see, with the forecast of his fellow prophet of Hackensack.

"I predicted to the day that cold rainstorm we had in August and also the hot spell in July, so you see I know what I'm talking about," says Weather Prophet De Voe.

"Uncle" Horace's great exploit in the weather forecasting line was the blizzard of 1888. Andrew Jackson De Voe's was the Galveston flood, the exact time of which he missed, he says, by only twenty-four hours. "Uncle" Horace predicted bad weather for Mr. Taft's inauguration right in the face of the government's delightful prophecy.

Both of these famous weather prophets think that they have it all over Uncle Sam's paid officials and don't see why in the world the government doesn't ask them for their recipes. "Uncle" Horace will undertake the entire job of telling the weather the year round for Uncle Sam for the sum of $200,000 a year. The Hackensack prophet, on the other hand, has a standing offer to the government to sell his secret for $100,000.

"Uncle" Horace, who enhanced his fame years ago by predicting an earthquake in the Connecticut valley which really happened, used to be a member of the Corn Exchange in New York. He is now rounding out his eighty-eighth year in the little village on the shore of the Connecticut. Most of his observations are made from the top of his barn.

"My system," he says, "is based entirely upon a knowledge of astronomy, meteorology and mathematics. It is easily possible for me to see one else to foretell first class storms fifty years in advance or to tell that there were storms on certain days years ago."

All the planets are governed by one central power house. All the planets are held in their places by one central attraction in the middle of the universe, the center of creation. In order to predict the weather, one must know enough about astronomy and mathematics to place a certain planet in position whereby the attractive force of the planet draws directly from the central force of gravity of the earth. This disturbs the equilibrium of the earth, lessens its hold on the atmosphere and causes disturbances in the air that bring in moisture when the air moves away. Then you have a storm. "To know what time a planet will be near enough to us to disturb the atmosphere and figure out when and where it will be disturbed is to predict weather."

"Uncle" Horace thinks that people should not be quite so reckless in shifting some of the earthly ballast as we sail along through space. He's quite in earnest about this. When we dig up all the coal in Pennsylvania and ship it around the earth, he says, we unbalance the earth, give our ship a list as it were, and it takes centuries for it to right itself.

"In the meantime," argues Middle Haddam's sage, "weather develops in an unusual manner, rivers dry up and time is unbegotten."

Out in Hackensack, if you ask Prophet De Voe about "Uncle" Horace he will tell you that he knows all about him and hates to differ with him, but it's really the moon that controls the weather and a good many of the other things up in the sky can go hang. The earth, he says, is covered by an invisible ceiling or dome. The moon breaks through this and cold air from above rushes down through the break and that accounts for the changes in weather. Eclipses are very important things in his calculations.

Prophet De Voe's weather work is all done in the study of his Hackensack home after he gets through his work in his sawmill. He says that he hits it right just nine times out of ten, year in and year out, and that the reason he misses at all is because he needs a good astronomer to work with him. But astronomers are expensive, so he has to do much of the work himself.—New York Sun.

KANSAS GIRL FARMERS MAKE GREAT SUCCESS

They Take Up Father's Work and Win Out.

In the southwest part of Kingman county there lives a German farmer, Rennie Griem, who has been ill the past year. The family consists mostly of girls. One of these girls is a school teacher and two are students in the Kingman high school.

Hired help has been hard to get the past season, and the farmer not being able to attend to farm work, the girls concluded to take matters into their own hands, and last spring as soon as the eldest daughter's term of school had closed she went home, hooked up to the lister and working early and late put in seventy acres of corn.

As soon as the two other girls were home from high school they turned in and assisted in cultivating the corn crop, assisted in the milking and care of the stock, sold and delivered the milk to the creamery, put up the hay from twenty-seven acres of alfalfa, put up quite an amount of prairie hay and other feed crops and attended to the multifarious duties on the farm all by themselves, receiving no assistance from a man during the entire season.

The result is a field of corn which competent judges say will yield an average of fifty bushels to the acre and all the rest of the farm work up in ship shape. The girls having attended to the pressing duties of the farm and their father being in better health, they will resume their places in school for the coming term.—Kansas City Journal.

BOLD ATTEMPT MADE
TO ROB A FARMERBy Two Negroes or Two Whites
Disguised as Negroes.THE ATTACK IS MADE
NORTH OF THE CITYWhere the Pennsylvania Road Crosses the Pike—Henry E. May,
the Man Assailed, Beats the
Would-Be Highwaymen—Hounds
Put on Trail to No Avail.A bold attempt was made to hold up Henry E. May, residing about two miles east of Morral, while he was driving home from this city about 7 o'clock Thursday evening.May, who is a chicken dealer, brought a number of chickens to town Thursday in his light wagon.
He had just collected $25 at the German bakery, on north Main street, and started to drive home.At a point near the Pennsylvania railroad crossing, at the end of north Main street, two colored men, or white men with blackened faces, asked him for a ride as far as the Harvey farm, where they said they were going to husk corn.
May consented, and they mounted the seat with him. After going a short distance on the Upper Sandusky pike, one of the men grabbed May by the arms, and the other also caught hold of him. May was not long in realizing the object of the attack, and with his elbow struck the man who was holding his arms, knocking him from the wagon. At the same time the other fellow jumped from the seat to the ground.The fellow knocked from the wagon drew a revolver and fired at May, the bullet being so close as to burn the latter's chin. May had a revolver in his upper coat pocket.
He drew it and fired at the fellow, but evidently his aim was poor, for the two fellows ran around the rear end of the wagon and made their escape. May then continued to the home of F. E. Coon, from which place he called the police.Captain Bond, with Officers Shrock and Thompson, secured the hounds and went to the scene of the blie. The dogs took up the trail and followed it back to Fairground street, thence east to State street and north, cutting through lots to Lincoln park and to the Pennsylvania tracks where it was lost. The dogs were taken back and given a second trail, which was followed to the Garden City pike and lost, the search being abandoned at this place.The police have a clue to the guilty parties and an investigation is now being made.May was in possession of over $100 when the attempt was made to rob him, and it is the opinion of the police that his assailants wereaware of his having that sum with him.HARRY E. STINSON

SESSIONS OF SYNOD CLOSE IN MANSFIELD

Meeting To Be Held Next October in Bellefontaine.

DR. SWIGGETT PAID TRIBUTE FOR SERVICE

Is Suggested as Moderator for the Next Synod Meeting—The Care of Aged Ministers, Widows and Orphans of Ministers Is Given Attention—Bible Society Work, Thursday Afternoon.

After dinner and a visit to the reformatory and learning much of interest and value, the Ohio synod of the Presbyterian church resumed business Thursday at 2:30 p. m. in Mansfield and heard the report of the committee on the board of foreign missions as given by the Rev. Dr. Herron, of Wooster.

Excellent addresses were given by the Rev. Dr. S. S. Palmer and by the Rev. Dr. W. G. Reigle, of Stubeleville, showing how so many of the county churches have doubled contributions to missions since beginning to use the duplex envelope system.

Rev. Dr. Houston then spoke and prayer was offered by Dr. Palmer, of Columbus, and Dr. Erskine, white secretary of the board of foreign missions.

It has been suggested in view of the many seasons of prayer during this synod that it may honestly be termed in history as "the praying synod."

The report of the committee on ministerial relief was presented by Elder Peacock.

The Rev. Dr. John Walker, of Clifton, spoke with fervor eloquence and feeling on the subject of "Caring for Aged Ministers and the Widows and Orphans of Ministers."

The synod directed that active effort be made immediately by the various Presbyteries to secure the sum of $100,000 for the board of ministerial relief.

Rev. D. D. Bigger, D. D., spoke on the subject of "Sustentation."

The finance committee reported finding the account of Treasurer Putnam as correct, showing a balance in bank of $740.02.

The committee on temperance offered a resolution commending the Anti-Saloon league of Ohio and protesting against a member of the cabinet of the president of the United States being at the brewers' convention now being held in Chicago.

The Rev. Dr. E. Trumbull Lee, of Pittsburgh, of the assembly committee on temperance then spoke eloquently on the work of the committee during which he announced the final decision that the state of Maine had voted by a majority of 732 not to permit a license of the sale of intoxicating liquors.

The Rev. Clayton Eldridge, of the Anti-Saloon league, delivered a fiery address.

The committee on board of freedmen missions reported through Rev. A. B. Rhinow. The report was adopted.

The report of the committee on leave of absence was adopted.

Records of the following Presbyteries were approved:

Athens, Columbus, St. Clairsville, Maumee, Dayton, Lima, Steubenville, Wooster, Bellefontaine, Cincinnati, Zanesville with exceptions, Cleveland with exceptions, Chillicothe with exceptions.

Rev. G. S. G. Browne, D. D., district secretary of the American Bible society made an instructive address on the work of that society.

Rev. Frank Foster addressed the synod on "The American Tract Society."

Roll was then called and the body adjourned for supper, after which at 7:30 o'clock, the meeting in the interest of foreign missions was opened by singing the hymn, "God Loved the World of Sinners Lost," led by a choir of male voices.

The scripture lesson was given by all in concert, reciting the words in the gospel by the Apostle John in the sixteenth verse of the third chapter: "For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten son, that whosoever believeth in Him, should not perish, but have everlasting life."

Prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. Baritz. A beautifully rendered anthem by the male chorus was followed by an address by Rev. Dr. Thomas Candor, who has been a missionary for thirty years in Bogota, South America, a city having a population of 30,000 people.

Rev. Dr. Chalfant, a missionary for twenty-six years in China, then spoke of the great awakening in that country.

Mrs. Whitesell, of the Philadelphia board of the Woman's Missionary societies, brought rich greetings and information to the synod.

The congregation joined in singing the hymn, "Stand Up, Stand Up, Ye Soldiers of the Cross."

An offering was then taken for the benefit of the Women's Synodical Society of Home and Foreign Missions, during which the male choir rendered very sweetly another beautiful anthem.

Flamen Ball then spoke on the subject of the insurance of missions and the getting rid of selfishness.

Rev. Dr. Stanley White, secretary of the board of foreign missions, then addressed the synod.

Rev. R. J. McAlpin reported resolutions of thanks to the members of the Mansfield Presbytery and citizens for the great hospitality extended to delegates of synod, to the United

Dr. Watson suggested that next year will be the silver anniversary of service Dr. Swiggett has rendered to the synod as its stated clerk; Dr. Dent Atkinson suggested that a suitable expression of appreciation of Dr. Swiggett would be to make him moderator of the synod in October, 1912, to be held in Bellefontaine. Minutes of the meeting held Thursday, October 12, were read and approved.

On motion the synod adjourned after prayer and benediction by Rev. Dr. Watson, of Cincinnati.

RUMOR OF MURDER WITHOUT GROUNDS

Frank Jacobs Dies in Bucyrus After a Fight.

FATTY DEGENERATION OF HEART IS CAUSE

Has Trouble with Louis Hagemier and Brings on Trouble Which Results in His Being Struck—The Excitement Hastens Death from Heart Trouble.

It was rumored in the city last Saturday that Louis Hagemier, who conducts the New Reber hotel in Bucyrus, and who is very well known in Marion, killed one of his bartenders in a fight in Bucyrus Friday night. The report was investigated and it was found that while a bartender of Hagemier's place had trouble with his employer and died following a fight, Hagemier was exonerated from blame.

Frank Jacobs, aged forty years, who for some time has been employed at Hagemier's place, was the victim of the trouble. Jacobs attended the Bucyrus races, Friday afternoon, and when he returned to go to work in the evening he was under the influence of liquor to the extent that Hagemier refused to let him go on duty. This angered Jacobs and he left the place, returning a few minutes later with a knife. Patrons and help about the place relieved Jacobs of the knife and the latter again left, but returned a few minutes later with a revolver to help Hagemier. After being relieved of the latter weapon, Jacobs engaged in an argument with Hagemier, the latter circling him with his fist on the side of the forehead near the right temple.

Jacobs then left the place and after taking a walk around the city, met his wife and children who persuaded him to go home. He accompanied them home. This was about two hours after the trouble. Jacobs retired to bed, but soon arose and went to a dresser drawer to get some collars to send to the laundry. He retired a second time, and was in bed but a little while when he called his wife from an adjoining room. When his wife reached the bedside, Jacobs fell into a deep sleep and died before medical attendance could be summoned.

A post-mortem examination was conducted by Coroner C. A. Ulmer, Dr. J. A. Chesney and Dr. P. R. Brubaker. The examination revealed that Jacobs had a bruise on his forehead caused by the blow from Hagemier, but that this did not cause his death. The verdict was that death was due to fatty degeneration of the heart, and was hastened by excitement.

Jacobs is a son of Mrs. George Jacobs, of Edison, and formerly resided at Mt. Gilead. In 1891 he was married to Miss Dorothy M. Sipe, of Edison, who with two daughters, Lone and Beatrice, survive. He is also survived by his mother and two brothers residing at Edison. Jacobs was well known by a large number of Marion people, who had met him in Bucyrus.

SPECIAL TAXES AND THEIR COLLECTION

The County Treasurer Gets a Ruling in the Matter.

TREASURER WHOLLY WITHOUT DISCRETION

Must Proceed To Collect Special Taxes Without Fear or Favor. Many Thousands of Dollars in Specials Are on the Books—Carried from Year to Year.

The treasurers of the county have in the past had a great deal of trouble in the collection of special taxes, and as result the specials have piled up until they amount to several thousand dollars.

Some of those having special taxes have been in the habit of paying their general taxes and neglecting the specials until hundreds of dollars are recorded against individuals. As a result of this practice the city has been embarrassed in meeting interest on bonds, etc.

A few days ago Treasurer Robert Dombagh wrote to the auditor of state for information as to whether it was proper to accept the general taxes and allow the specials to stand. The reply is to the effect that the treasurer is without discretion in the matter, but his office is simply a collecting agency, and the officer must be governed by the tax duplicate. Whatever is on the duplicate must be collected promptly without fear or favor. If there is objection to a special assessment the party objecting has recourse in court where he may obtain an injunction restraining the collection of the taxes until the case can be heard on its merits. In the absence of such an injunction the treasurer must proceed with the collection according to law.

DON'T EXPERIMENT

You Will Make No Mistake if You Follow This Advice.

Never neglect your kidneys. If you have pain in the back, urinary disorders, dizziness and nervousness, it's time to act and no time to experiment. These are common symptoms of kidney trouble, and you should seek a remedy which is recommended for the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use. It has cured many stubborn cases in this vicinity.

Can Marion residents demand further proof than the following testimonial?

Henry S. Smith, 366 W. Bigelow St., Upper Sandusky, Ohio, says: "I well know what it is to suffer from kidney complaint and backache. Three years ago I had one attack after another, some of which were so severe that I could hardly straighten after stooping. A friend finally advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills but I had little faith in them, as I had previously tried so many other remedies without being helped. However, I finally procured a box and they entirely cured me. I have been free from kidney complaint and backache during the past three years and I give Doan's Kidney Pills credit for effecting a permanent cure."

NEW MINISTERS BEGIN DUTIES IN THE CITY

Rev. C. R. Havighurst at Epworth M. E. Church.

ADDRESS HEARD BY BIG CONGREGATION

Rev. Charles J. Keppel Talks to Two Large Audiences at Salem's Evangelical Protestant Church—Some Thoughts Offered on Vacations. Other Church Services Sunday.

Dr. C. R. Havighurst preached his first sermon in his new charge at the Epworth M. E. church Sunday morning. He was heard with interest by a large audience.

Dr. Havighurst preached on "The Fine Art of Life." He took for his text Psalm 10:17, "And let the beauty of the Lord our God be upon us, and establish thou the work of our hands upon us."

In speaking of the beauty of this life the pastor said that a man's life is measured by what he takes in. Some see only the world in its rudest form while others take in the beauty of their surroundings, the beauty of nature and all that is pure and good. Truth, purity and love are the three elements that constitute a beautiful life and one can not have all of these elements in their truest sense unless he take for his example the life of Christ.

Dr. Havighurst said in part: "There is a tendency to depreciate the element of beauty in this life. We admire the strong, rugged things of life and we often forget to look at the beauty all about us. Many of us have yet to learn that life is a fine art. Beauty is structural, beauty is organic, beauty lies in the nature of things, it is fullness of life and maturity. The element of beauty in a human life is the final goal toward which all nature turns. This art of beauty—the most difficult of all arts—has its laws laid down. And the first business of the artist of life is to find what are these laws."

"The Lord has given us the tools out of which we are to fashion this fine art and it is our business to use these instruments to the best of our ability. The Mighty Architect of the universe, Who built us these mighty cathedrals of nature, Who fills the groves with song and embroiders the meadows with flowers, don't want you and I to go through the world without seeing the beauty of it all. He holds you responsible if you don't. God wants us to know the world we live in and absorb it. The supreme test of every life is what it takes in. I went into a town one time and I met a man who told me of all the evil of that place, all the corruption and places of vice. Then I met another man who saw his surroundings from the opposite standpoint. He saw only the beauty that enveloped his life. Thus a man's life is always measured by what he takes in."

"We must not only know the world in which we live, but we must know ourselves. You must find out what is in this world that nourishes your life and is good for it. Everything in nature that grows knows what to take—except man. He makes the biggest blunders, the most mistakes. Therefore you have to find out what is good for your life so that it can bud and blossom into beauty."

"What are some of the things that makes this beauty? In the first place you must have truth. No human being can grow into beauty of life without truth. The biggest thing in the universe is not love, as many suppose, but it is truth. The biggest thing in God is truth and the biggest thing in man is truth. Truth is the greatest foundation on which the world is builded. You can not grow a beautiful life unless you have truth. If truth is the law of all art, preeminently it is the law of all life. That does not only mean speaking the truth but thinking and doing the truth. There is absolutely no place in the good life for pretense. The biggest liar is by no means the man who tells a lie, but the man who lives a lie. There is no room for intellectual lies in a man's life, he has no business to pretend to be what he is not. It is not moral to wear a false label. If the druggists have to be honest and label their medicines correctly, surely Christians ought to be. We are wearing the label of Christianity."

"The second element of a beautiful life is purity. You can not have a beautiful life unless you are pure. The artist of life is revealed by what he rejects. Sin is a defilement. You can not be beautiful as long as you do not reject sin. The one place where you can get rid of sin is at the cross of calvary. Come and wash in this fountain and be clean."

"The third element is love. You can not have a beautiful life without love. In all ages love has ruled men. These three constitute the elements of a beautiful life. More beautiful than the finest marble ever carved is a beautiful life. But there has never but one such life ever lived in this world, that never had a flaw to mar its beauty, or a spot to blemish its character. Only the Christ lived the perfectly beautiful life. It was He who went about everywhere doing good; rejoicing with them that rejoiced and sympathizing with those in sorrow; healing the sick, raising the dead or burying the little child in His arms; and proclaiming in the garden of Gethsemane and dying on calvary. The beautiful God. That is the beauty of the Lord our God. May such beauty come upon you and upon the preachers."

Rev. Charles J. Keppel. Rev. Charles J. Keppel began his work as pastor of Salem's Evangelical Protestant church Sunday, succeeding Rev. Joseph Reinicke, who has gone to Wooster. At the morning service he preached in German and at the evening service in English, and at both services was heard by large congregations.

Rev. Mr. Keppel took for his theme at the evening service, "Vacations," and selected his text from Matthew 11:28, "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest." "Having just returned after a vacation and believing that many of you at some time during the past season have enjoyed a vacation we will direct your attention to this subject," the minister said in opening. "All nature does her work on the principle of compensation. Every part of nature demands its material from something else. Life in one form always implies death in another and man has always recognized this fact in nature. When the soil appears to be worn out, he places fertilizer upon it, but this is not enough. He will resort to a reversion of the crops, a changing about that will be beneficial. Even this does not prove sufficient and the soil must be given a long rest, in order that it may regain itself and return to normality. It is God's great vacation law for the restoration of the soil. Man recognizes this law, but is prone to overlook it in its relation to himself and those whom he employs."

"Man does not, by any means, come without the jurisdiction of God's great vacation law. Man is so prone to neglect the needed rest. Just as the soil must have periods of rest just so must man have sleep. He requires above all things sleep. It is sin, my friends, to neglect sleep. As the soil must be planted with different crops at times, so must man have a change of occupations. Then man must have an absolute rest to restore himself to his original self. What should be the kind of rest, and what is the purpose of a vacation? The vacation is not to cease work, but to return to normality through the restoration of ourselves. Society suffers from man's refusal to rest. It is not a disgrace to relax and to rest. Man is prone to build about himself a prison, and higher and higher he builds the walls about him until he can not see over them."

"Man also needs a spiritual vacation. Do we mean by a spiritual vacation to lessen our spirituality for a time? Not by any means. We mean by a vacation, a restoration. When we are weary and tired we may go to Christ and He will restore us."

In his closing remarks, Rev. Mr. Keppel urged his hearers that when they are lost in discouragement and despair they should go to Christ who invites them to come to Him for restoration.

NATION BUILDING.

By William T. Ellis.

The International Sunday School Lesson for October 22 is "Foundation of the Second Temple Laid." Ezra 3:1-6:5.

I had been watching the Jews at the walling place in Jerusalem one Friday afternoon. Some of the devotion seemed mechanical, as when some old Spanish Jews in garbodies went up to the wall and read for a space, then, after perfunctorily touching the stones with their lips, stepped off to one side and chatted and giggled. I was informed that these men are hired to say prayers at the walling place for Jews in distant lands.

Then, as I was about to leave, I saw a woman of perhaps thirty, draw near. She had been praying at the other end of the wall. As she approached, I perceived that she bore such a face as might have been Rachel's—strong, melancholy, spiritual, queenly. She was manifestly oblivious to the motley company about her of Jews from many nations; her soul was in her rapt fact; turned toward the great blocks of yellowed stone, still standing from the foundation of Solomon's temple. Her hands were clasped to her bosom and her lips moved in prayer. She was seeing, with great, lustrous eyes, not these monoliths covered with Hebrew names and prayers, but the glory of the house of Jehovah and of the kingdom of her fathers. All that had been and now is not, and that a devout child of Abraham hopes may yet again be, was symbolized for this worshiper by these stones. She kissed them again and again, as a woman kisses the lover she fears she may nevermore see, and as she moved away, she looked back over her shoulder with unutterable longing in her eyes.

That incident gave me a new conception of the ardor and intensity with which a Jew may love even the very stones of the temple. There I saw embodied the passion of the returning exiles for the house of Jehovah. The spirit of her people, at their highest and deepest moods, was personified by that one devotee. It was a new light upon this entire story of the rebuilding of the temple, which the Sunday-schools today study.

"The East Is the East."

Nobody will ever understand the Jew until it is remembered that he is an Oriental. The deep-flowing religious spirit of this people who were chosen to be custodians of humanity's loftiest religious truth is partially explained by the Oriental's supreme interest in religion. The occidental is not so. To this day the people of all the East, but especially of the region called the Near East, whence sprang the Jews, put religion first. All sorts of religions thrive there; an irreligious man is unthinkable. The villagers on the hills of Lebanon, the shepherds in the fields of Palestine, the Bedouins of the desert in their tents, the diverse peoples in the Tigris-Euphrates valley, talk over historic and doctrinal religious questions just as a group of Americans discuss politics or baseball.

At the present time, the region where the Bible story was enacted is afire with religious agitation, due to the war declared against Turkey by Italy. The Moslem world feels any attack upon the Sultan, whom it regards as Caliph, and "commander of the faithful," as an act of hostility to its faith. So, from India to Europe, the followers of Mohammed have been drawn together into new and defensive solidarity. They see, first and chiefly, the religious aspect of the war. The mainspring of politics in these realms is usually religion.

The Chief Fact About Man.

The Jewish exiles who centered their first thought upon the spiritual side of the return from captivity were true to the fundamental aspiration of humanity. As Carlyle says, "In every sense, a man's religion is the chief fact with regard to him. A man's, or a nation of men's. If you tell me what that is, you tell me, to a very great extent, what the man is, what kind of things he will do."

The flippant youth, or the immature man, who "has no time for religion," and who is not interested in the church, and feels too big for a Bible class, has all the history of the human race, and the testimony of all the great thinkers, arrayed squarely against him. One hour's honest research upon the subject will start any man toward a realization of the truth that religion is the theme that has most deeply engrossed the best thought of mankind from the dawn of history to the present hour. The shallow materialism of the West is not improvement upon the inbred religiousness of the East.

The Altar at the Center. The huge task of the returned exiles was to rebuild a nation. Their existence as a country had been practically ended; they were only a scattered host of captives, and their land was laid waste at its capital, and elsewhere occupied by hybrid aliens. The work ahead of them as they traversed the dreary road from Babylon back home was even harder than the first organization of a state. Rebuilding in some ways more difficult than building. The person who has made a wreck of life finds it a great undertaking to re-make than it was to build in youth.

Vision was needed to see the new Jerusalem in these heaps of debris, these piled-up pillars, these obliterated streets. A few years ago, when I walked over the smoking acres of rubbish that had once been San Francisco, I marveled at the courage and imagination of the citizens who from the first saw a new and fairer city rising from these ruins. So it takes the vision that has been spirit-anointed to see in every wreck of humanity the man that may yet be; and in the weaknesses and offenses of the present social order a new and perfect state of society. The faith which these old Jews possessed, to behold a second and greater temple in the stead of this desolation, is needed by all spiritual builders today.

Despite their mixed emotions, their mingled tears and psalms, the returned exiles had the wisdom to perceive the proper first step. Without waiting for a building, they set up an altar. That was an act of faith and reality. It proclaimed their trust in God and their allegiance to Him. And it showed that they realized what Christians need always to remember, that it is the worship that makes the temple, and not the temple the worship. The spirit is more than the house. Whoever erects an altar in his heart, in his home, in his life, shows a sense of proportion; he puts first things first.

What Use Is the Church.

This whole episode—it was more than an episode; it was an event in Jewish history—raises the present-day application of the place of the church in national life. The Jewish nation was built about the temple. America was founded upon religious convictions. The cornerstone of this new type of life, which, despite the recent election, is essentially the same on both sides of the Canadian line, is a sense of the supremacy of spiritual things. Canada has taught the whole world a lesson by her zeal in planting the church in every one of her frontier communities; wherever the nation advances, there advances the church also. The most thoughtful people of the Dominion have a conviction that Christianity is indispensable: the church steeple is the first and highest of the frontier landmarks.

A new sense of the proper functions of the church in a community is taking hold of our day. The national country life commission has pointed it out. Not only for preaching and worship, but as centers of the social life of the neighborhood the churches have a use. Whatever is of general interest, whatever makes for real neighborliness, whatever promotes intellectual uplift, whatever ministers to patriotism and social betterment, is proper for the church. A return of the old-fashioned lyceum, a revival of the oft-derided church supper, not for money-making, but for good fellowship, the maintenance of a local Chautauqua—all these are proper for the church, which is placed in the midst of the people to minister to all the needs of their spirit. In the promotion of world-brotherhood, what agency so appropriate and effective as the church?

This Western world is dead opposed to any alliance of church and state. That is a discarded notion, even in the thinking of progressive Europeans. But the church in the state—interpreting all its intellectual, social, commercial and industrial processes—is most proper and necessary. That is the modern fulfillment of the ideal of the Jewish exiles.

The Bagdad Synagogue. Later we shall study the difficulties of these builders, and the opposition they met. Today let us rejoice with them. The laying of the foundations of the new temple was made the occasion of a great festival, a thanksgiving service. The idea seems as incongruous as that of the first American Thanksgiving day which the Pilgrims kept. All around was the desolation wrought by Nebuchadnezzar's forces. Only the eye of faith could see any result of the return and the reconstruction. Yet when the foundation stones were laid a feast of praise and rejoicing was held, with music and shouting, and the antiphonal refrain, "Oh, give thanks unto Jehovah, for he is good: For his loving kindness endureth forever."

The fountain of tears lies very close to the springs of joy. This great jubilation was a time of weeping as well as a time of song; the noise of those who shouted for joy, and of those who wept for remembrance, mingled together. The old looked backward; the young looked forward. The whole made a symphony of praise.

Apparently the weepers were builders also. Lamentation that is handless and footless honors nothing. The bettering of the present is the best tribute to the past. The Jews who still dwell in the land of the exile have their headquarters at Bagdad, with a school of the law, where aged rabbis are in study and conference. I have been in council with them, but in all their discussion of the past they kept rising before my mind the image of the chief Bagdad synagogue, a building of immemorial antiquity, but dirty, unkempt and miserable beyond belief. The seal of the rabbis for the past—and this is a lesson—would better be shown by activity for present improvement. I do not think much of the orthodox, whether it be Moslem, Jewish or Christian which is so engrossed in idle words that it has no thought for activity right here and now. So long as men are builders, it matters little whether they sing or sob.

ORDERS ARE ISSUED BY STATE FIRE MARSHAL

Fire Traps Must Be Removed in Short Time.

MARSHAL CONDEMNS LOCAL STRUCTURES

An Inspector Acting Under the Direction of John W. Zuber Finds a Great Many Buildings in the City Are Liable to Catch Fire and Menace Property.

As a result of the inspection made in the city about ten days ago by L. D. Wilford, assistant state fire marshal, John W. Zuber, state fire marshal, has sent out orders for the razing of a number of buildings in the business part of the city. The action on the part of the state fire marshal is state wide, and many buildings have been ordered torn down in various cities of the state with a view to lessening the fire danger. While the inspection of the assistant state fire marshal has not been completed, orders have been sent to twelve property owners in Marion and more are expected to receive them within a few days.

The law requires that the orders shall be complied with in the time fixed in them. If the order is not carried out by the property owner within the required time, the refusal to do so is punishable by a fine of not less than $10 or more than $50 for each day of refusal. The law also provides that if the order is not complied with the state department may proceed with the work and charge the same to the owner of the property. On the refusal of the latter to pay for the removal of the buildings within thirty days, the bill is to be turned in to the county auditor with a penalty of twenty-five per cent, for collection by him.

As a result of the orders sent out the danger of fires in Marion will be greatly lessened and a big hole will be much in evidence in the city, which has many old sheds and barns in the business section. The orders sent here up to date are as follows:

To Remove Buildings. Mrs. Bertha Terpany and Oscar Zimmerman, owners of the property on south Main street, occupied by W. P. Fetter, must remove the old buildings at the rear within thirty days, for the reason that they are dilapidated, liable to fire and a menace to adjoining property.

H. Ackerman is ordered to remove the frame building at the rear of his store room, on south Main street within thirty days for the same reason.

Mrs. Margaret Diebold is the hardest hit by the orders sent out. She is ordered to raze the buildings on the property owned by her at the northeast corner of Church and Main streets within sixty days. The reason assigned is that the buildings are dilapidated, liable to fire and a menace to the property adjoining. The buildings on the property are now occupied by King's second-hand store, McDonald's meat market, Bindley's plumbing shop, Scott's bicycle repair shop and the blacksmith shop of Elsa Kress.

Gustave Heyde is ordered to remove the two-story barn on the rear of his property on south Main street, the business room being occupied by the drug store of W. G. Windhurst. Thirty days is given the owner of the property to comply with the order.

The frame building occupied by J. T. Hurley's blacksmith shop, located at the rear of the property of Mrs. J. Hughes, on south Main street, is ordered removed within thirty days.

Other Fire Traps. J. and C. Allmendinger, owners of the property on south Main street now occupied by Jacob Weber, are ordered to remove part of a chain of sheds at the rear of the business room, within thirty days.

An order to the Andrew Leffer estate given thirty days in which to remove a frame shed at the rear of the building occupied by the Luna theater, on south Main street.

A. H. Kling is given thirty days in which to remove the frame buildings at the rear of the rooms occupied by the Buky Bee restaurant and the room to the north, for the reason that they are liable to fire and a menace to the property adjoining.

The frame barn on the rear of the property of J. G. Leffer, at No. 134 south Main street, is ordered removed within thirty days for the reason that it is in a dilapidated condition.

An order to the H. True estate requires the removal of the frame shed at the rear of Nos. 213 and 215 east Center street, and occupied as a storage room by the Marion Department company, the order to be complied with in thirty days.

J. A. Huber, as agent, is ordered to raze the barn at the rear of the old Baptist church, on east Center street, for the reason that it is dilapidated, liable to fire and a menace to adjoining property. The barn is now occupied by the Marion Provision company.

W. L. Casady, owner of the skating rink on north State street, must repair the sheetrock siding and have the sliding door the space beneath the rink in order to keep out rubbish and make the building less liable to fire. He is given thirty days in which to comply with the order.

TAFT DELUGED WITH FLOWERS

California's Great His Train at Every Stop.

President is Now Off for Montana

Taft Makes Trip Through Famous Otterus Lands.

The President, after enjoying the highest climate of Golden Gate State, starts a long jump to Butte, where heavy snows are reported. Lemon growers make appeal for protection.

San Bernardino, Cal., Oct. 18.—

California's most picturesque section was visited by President Taft as he started on the longest jump of his thirteen thousand mile trip from Los Angeles to Butte, Mont., a distance of 1,245 miles, or farther than from Here to Florida. There are no scheduled stops for this trip but many small towns along the way have gathered a few minutes and are waiting to see the president.

The last place which the president visited before leaving Los Angeles was Long Beach, where he walked about the hotel and watched the bathers fight the surf of the Pacific and left about the warm sand of the beach in the sun. It was unaccountably warm and the president sought the shade, where cool sea breezes might reach him. He carried long enough for a light-lunch and then, he left to visit the city which the presidential party had made its headquarters.

Through Citrus Land. The first place of the long jump was through the orange and lemon groves of the southern valley. Stops were made at four or five towns where the president spoke to the crowds from the platform of his car. The last stop was at the journey through the desert. The people at the stations were dressed mostly in white and they cheered the president as he passed. Every look of the Taft special will at least have the fruitfulness of these flowers for the president's duty trip over the desert of Nevada and Utah. They gave their tribute of fruit also.

After the train left for miles and miles through orchards of lemon and orange trees, the Taft special arrived at Pecos, N. M., and there a delegation of the local body of Elks was waiting for the president with a huge bunch of lemons decorated with a ribbon for the maintenance of the Christian fruit trade. The placard on the bunch read: "We come from Pecos, N. M., and we are proud to see you." The president spoke to the Elks and then he left for the next stop.

The president was greeted by a delegation of the local body of Elks and then he left for the next stop. EMORY E. KNOX IS GUILTY OF CHARGE

Attorney General in Supplication of His Acquittal.

Baltimore, was made a couple of days ago for the arrest of Emory E. Knox in Lansing, Michigan, Knox having been charged with the murder of a woman. The attorney general has now been informed that Knox is not a member here and no further action will be taken.

Emory E. Knox, who was arrested a few days ago for attempting to extort money from R. E. Olds, the Lansing, Michigan, automobile manufacturer, by black-hand letters, proves to have been formerly with the Al G. Field minstrels. He says that he was driven to straits because the group factory for which he had been traveling did not pay him a large enough salary. In his demand for the $3,000 from Olds he made the rather unusual statement that he would repay the amount in a year, with interest at six per cent. He made a complete confession when arrested yesterday.

THE FINEST STRETCH OF ROAD IN COUNTY

Richwood People Believe in Good Roads.

PAVING PROJECT HELD UP FOR TIME

Annual Inspection of Livingston Relief Corps Held at a Special Meeting in the G. A. R. Hall—Social Hour Follows the Business—Some Village News Notes.

The new carter road, built from the forks of the road, two miles west of Richwood, to the west corporation line of the village, was completed, last week, and is the finest stretch of highway in northern Union county. The work of construction was supervised by William Hopp, the veteran road builder, of Marysville. The road is probably the most traveled of any highway leading into the village and before being rebuilt was a veritable sea of mud. The road bed was first covered with crushed stone, then with a fine stone, followed with tar and gravel. Since its completion it presents a hard, white surface, almost equal to asphalt. Many of the residents of Bonford street are in favor of improving their thoroughfare in this manner instead of paying with brick. However, as there is an injunction against any improvement whatever and as the question will not be settled until the April term of court, it is doubtful if much interest will be taken in the matter this winter.

REPUBLICAN STRENGTH.

The solicitude shown by the enemies of the Republican party about its future would be touching if it were sincere. As it is, their concern is significant in a different way.

What it proves is that the men who are most eager to see the Republican ticket defeated next year and its ascendancy in the nation terminated are much afraid that nothing of that kind is going to happen. If they believed that Republican prospects were as dark as they say they are no more anxiety would be manifested or felt about the wisdom or unwisdom of the course the party may take or the candidates it may put in the field.

Beyond doubt, the general belief of the best informed politicians in the country is that the Republican outlook is more uncertain and less promising than it was before any presidential election for many years.

There is reason for that opinion, as every one knows. But beyond doubt, likewise, students of public affairs are well aware of the extraordinary power and vitality which the Republican organization has always shown in a crisis and they understand that for nearly two decades continuously the Republican margin of superior strength has been large enough to withstand a good deal of shrinkage.

The fight in 1912 is sure to be one of extreme interest and hotly contested to the end. But the outcome is full of uncertainty. Nothing vital is absolutely assured for either party.—Cleveland Leader.

SAUL FLING WANTED ON SERIOUS CHARGE

Charged with Shooting with Intent to Kill.

THE WELKER HOME SCENE OF TROUBLE

It Is Alleged Fellow Shoots Through Door with a Revolver—Fling Makes Escape—Notes Gathered in the Local Police Court Circles.

Saul Fling is being looked for by the police to answer to the serious charge of shooting with intent to kill. The affidavit for the warrant was sworn to in the mayor's court late Sunday afternoon, by Monroe Welker, who resides on Glad street. The offense of Fling being committed about 3 o'clock.

Fling, who resides on Nye street, is said to have been under the influence of liquor and was being led home through an alley back of the Welker home by two companions. Welker had his horse grazing in the alley and Fling, who is a powerful fellow, picked the animal up by the front legs and then struck the horse back of the ear with his fist, knocking it down. Welker, who was on the back porch of his home, went to the alley and asked Fling what he was trying to do. Fling replied that he could have some of the same dose if he wanted it.

According to Welker and other witnesses of the trouble, Fling drew a knife and struck twice at Welker, the latter getting out of the way. When Fling started at him Welker backed away and to stop his assailant picked up a piece of brick and hit Fling on the head. Welker then went to his house. Fling told his companions to wait for him while he went to his home and he would return and "get" Welker. True to his word Fling returned and went to the back door of the Welker home. He was stopped by Mrs. Welker, who slammed the door shut. Welker kept Fling out of the house by holding his feet against the door.

Angered by being resisted in his designs, Fling shot through the door, the bullet just missing Mrs. Welker, who stepped to one side just as the shot was fired. The bullet was picked up and turned over to the police by Welker. From the apex of the bullet Fling must have used a forty-four or forty-five caliber revolver.

Hardly had the shooting occurred when a telephone call was sent to police headquarters, requesting the arrest of Fling. Officer Cusick and Special Officer Stengel went to Fling's home where they found him with Joseph Hostetter. Meanwhile Welker came up street to secure a warrant for Fling's arrest. As the two officers at the Fling home did not have a warrant and were not aware of the seriousness of the offense, on the advice of Hostetter, Fling refused to accompany them without a warrant and as it was out of the corporation limits, the officers left to await the filing of a charge.

After the warrant was issued, Chief Klinefelter, Captain Bond and Officer Cusick made a second trip to the Fling home, but he was gone. Residents of the vicinity stated that they had seen him going towards the garbage plant and the officers went in that direction. Some time later Hostetter was seen leading a bicycle from the southwest on the tracks of the Erie. From what the police could learn it is thought that Fling rode to the outskirts of the city on the wheel, making his escape. Fling is employed by the Pennsylvania railroad on the bridge gang. The officers are keeping a watch for him and he will be arrested on sight.
